During this semester, I... met a student during office hours	accidentally told the same joke two classes in a row	attended a CTL event	said "Great question" and meant it	collected mid-term feedback got really great teaching advice from a colleague	memorized student names successfully	was late to own class	gave really great teaching advice to a colleague	said "Great question" and didn't really mean it went "Whoa!" (positive OR negative) after reading student work	had a tech mishap (tip: go see Classroom Services)	FREE	felt nervous but taught anyway	used a pop culture reference students didn't get made a dad joke in class	learned a cool thing from a student	incorporated active learning	NAILED an explanation of a difficult concept	pulled up a slide and forgot the point of it asked Socratic questions	learned a lesson for a future semester	sighed because, yes, it's on the syllabus	really made a difference for one student, at one point in time	got helpful student feedback
